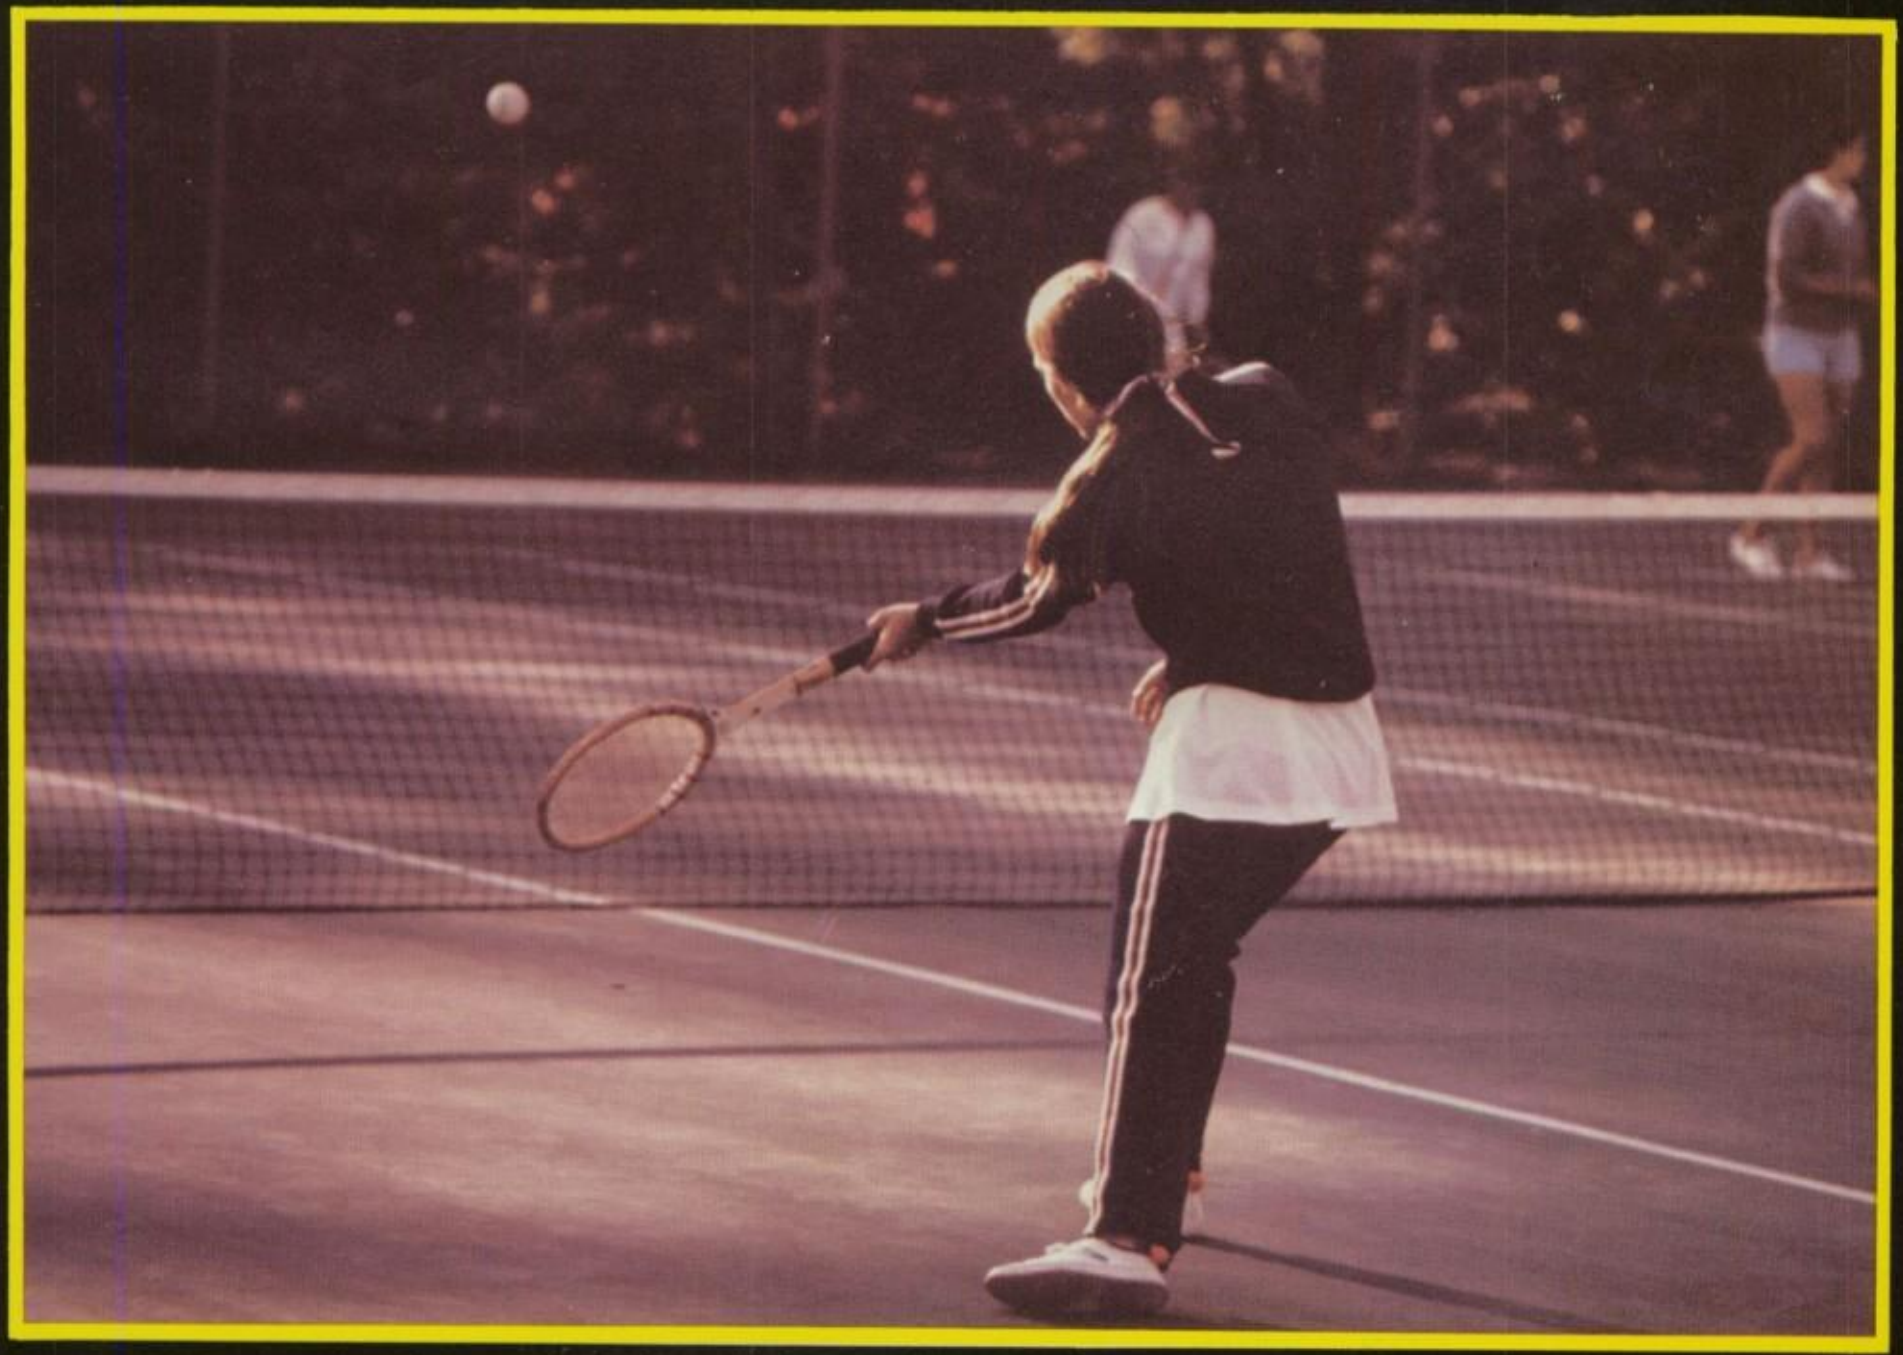
United we stand . . .



"When in the course of human events, the material well-being of a society obscures the spiritual principles upon which that society was founded, it becomes proper to review our heritage and redeclare its reason for being. Only by such recollection can a true renaissance of the original American spirit occur."

. . .Eric Sloane

This recollection of our heritage is the most important part of the Bicentennial Celebration. This commemoration is not just to celebrate the two-hundredth birthday of this nation, but to take a moment to look back into our past to reevaluate our lifestyles and moral values. For our society to continue and prosper in the future, we must look to the past to find the unity and brotherhood that we have, in some measure, lost along the way. In today's society of mobility, and large, urban centers, we have lost the small town closeness that was well known just fifty years ago. Most people today live in cities, far from where they were born, and distant from their close relatives. In both the cities and their suburbs, some may spend their entire lives not knowing many people, or caring what happens to them. This atmosphere is quite different from that in which our parents grew up. With such universal anonymity in this country, we must use this time of retrospection to try to change this country's attitude towards the individual.

We at Fairfax High School are notably lucky. We are a community high school, meaning that we draw our student body from one small, unchanging area, and that area is Fairfax City. When Fairfax High School was founded forty-one years ago, its student body came from small areas close to the city such as Clifton, Falls Church, Oakton. Now the area is much smaller and we are the only high school in the city. Because of this, anyone who has lived in this area for any length of time has either gone to Fairfax or known someone who has. For this reason, many citizens in our community and the surrounding areas have a feeling of comradeship with our school and its students. They are interested in both what we do as a school and as individuals. They realize that even though we are only teenagers, we are an integral part of the community and that without us, there would be no community.

"I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience. I know no way of judging of the future but by the past."

Patrick Henry

"No man is an island, entire of itself;" said poet John Donne, and neither is a school. Fairfax High is not a separate institution, but an institution that is very dependent on the community. The community not only supplies the money that the school needs to survive, but also supplies jobs for both students and teachers. Not only does the community provide financial support but moral support for our athletic teams, our drama productions, and other activities as well. They are as dependent upon us as we are upon them. Neither is an island.

We are lucky to be united with our surrounding community. Together, school and community, we may celebrate the Bicentennial. We must look back together if we are to learn how to move forward together. Together is a very important word for the Bicentennial Celebration. We cannot do it alone, to look back we must be united.

These thoughts were best summarized by Eric Sloane when he wrote: "We believe that all men are endowed by their Creator with inalienable rights, and that the foregoing creed renders not only independence to the nation but self-dependence for each American."

As in years past, the library adds to the school its unique mixture of atmospheres; academic, social, and recreational. The library unites the varying styles of the student body. Through the library, Mr. Stoneham, Mrs. Peil, and Mrs. Holland, an addition to the library staff, offer their services to the school.

For the second year as full time nurse, Mrs. Cossa has run the school clinic. She has aided the student body with her medical ability and has counseled those who sought advice. Though it is not a prominent aspect of the school the clinic is indispensable.

A few of the changes made in the Social Studies department this year were: Mr. Newlove teaches only half a day; Mrs. Billman teaches a new World History class; Mr. Sutherland starts teaching Social Psychology. Mr. Forsythe teaches a honor course in government. American Studies, taught Mr. Wood, Mrs. Himes, Mr. Ganley, and Mrs. Staats was added as a new course. These are but a few of the changes made, the rest is history.

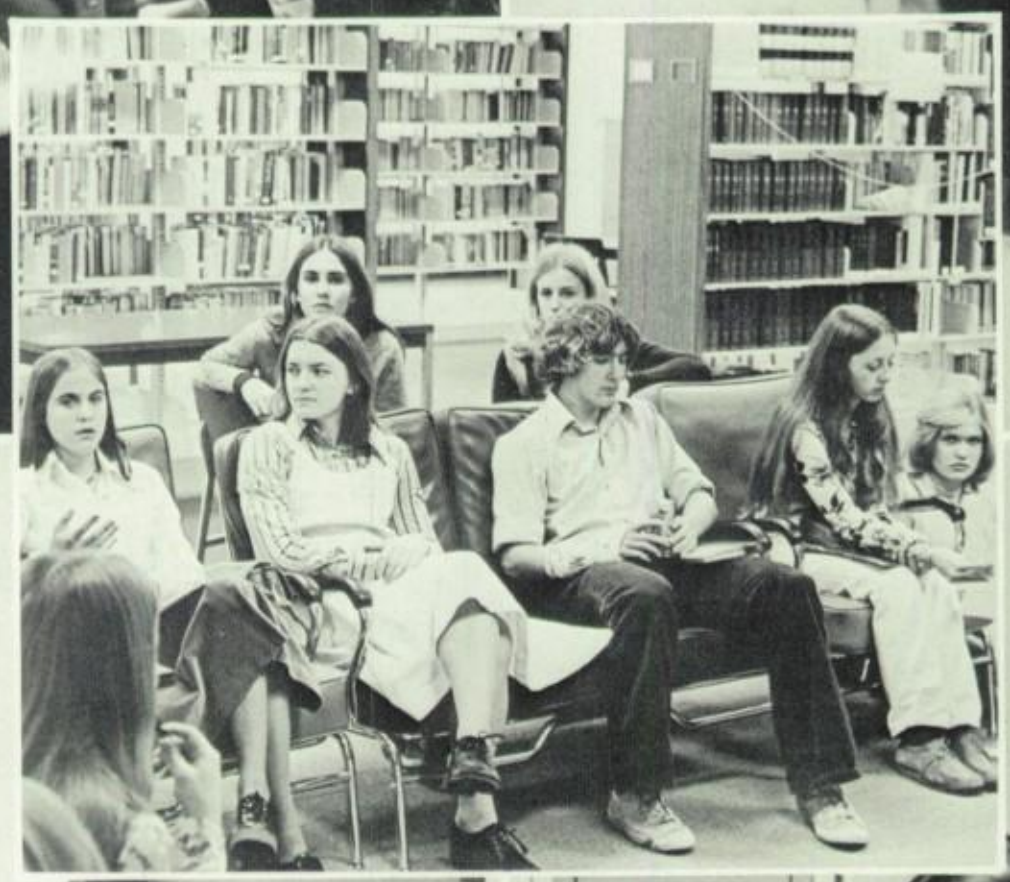
"I don't know what the future is holdin' in store
I don't know where I'm goin', I'm not sure where I've been.
There's a spirit that guides me, a light that shines for me
My life is worth the livin', I don't need to see the end."
John Denver



Sophomore Class

I am I
Do not change me condemn me
nor put me down
Accept me for what I am
No . . . you need not agree with me
But accept me
for I am total in being
I have my faults
I have my guilts
But that is who I am
Perfect I will never be
Allow me to be uninhibited
Do not pressure me into feeling what I do not feel
Accept me when I am flying high
As I have accepted you when you were flying high.
Do not put me down
nor make me feel unhappy about me.
I am I
and I like being what
I am.
ME!

"No man is an island" said poet John Donne. I disagree. I feel that man is an island, but there are no limitations to the number of bridges which he can build.

In 1799 the town of Providence, Va., later called Fairfax City, built a Court House on land purchased for six dollars. During the Civil War the Court House was used as a military outpost by both sides and changed hands several times during the war. The Court House still stands and is located on the corner of Routes 123 and 236. Among the most important documents preserved there are the wills of George and Martha Washington.

The Cobb house was built shortly after the Civil War. At that time it had only two rooms upstairs and two rooms downstairs and a porch. Additions were built by several different owners. In 1918, the house was bought by Mr. Cobb and it is now owned by his daughter, Miss Marvis Cobb.

In the early 1800's, Dr. S. Draper moved to Fairfax City and built his home (above). The rooms in front of the house were the Doctor's office and examining rooms. Dr. Draper sold his home in 1842, to William Chapman. Over the next one hundred and twenty three years, the Draper House had two or three different owners. Today, Judge John A. Rothrock owns the house and has restored it to the way it once looked.

Earp's Ordinary (Right) is the oldest standing building in Fairfax City today. It was a tavern for travelers who needed a bite to eat or a place to stay the night. It was a busy place with as much as six or eight men to a bed! Because of the popularity of the place, Fairfax was once called Earp's Corner. Little River Turnpike, in front of Earp's Ordinary, was the first paved road in the United States. Earp's Ordinary is located at 200 East Main Street, and is owned by Mrs. Charles Pozer.

The first newspaper for the city was the Fairfax Herald, which was founded in 1882 by a Spanish-American War veteran, Captain S.R. Donohue. In 1890, the newspaper began publishing in a new building, the Fairfax Herald Print Shop. After eighty-six years of publication, the Fairfax Herald stopped printing and today the print shop is an office for Courthouse Realty. The original presses are on display in the Smithsonian Institute.

Little is known about the history of the President's House of George Mason, but researchers have found that the house was built shortly after the Civil War and is now around 100 yrs. old. The House was once a part of Aspen Grove, a large estate in the area. In 1968, the buildings were bought by George Mason University, and in 1973, it became the home of Virgil Dykstra, the President of George Mason.

In the early 1700's, an area of land on Chain Bridge Road was known as Hope Farm. A cottage was built with log beams, which today still shows the original axe marks. In the years since the house was built, a great many changes were made by the owners of the home. A Dr. Ford H. Setnam built on a surgery. Other owners added a greenhouse, and even a swimming pool. Today, Hope Farm is known as Swallow's Barn and is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Guerin Todd.

N.T. Higginbotham built the Fairfax Theater in 1947. The theater was the first for Fairfax City, and was the only one for several miles around. In those days it was considered a grand place, and even today it has the best accoustics of any theater in the metropolitan area. Seven years ago, Mr. Higginbotham retired and leased the theater. As management changed, the Fairfax Theater deteriorated and lost patronage. On November 8, 1974, David Eltzard leased the theater with only $1,500. He's worked hard to bring the theater back to its Old grandeur. Mr. Eltzard changed the name of the theater to the Old Fairfax, and is showing old film classics as well as modern films. The customers have increased tenfold and it may not be long before the Old Fairfax Theater is once again the city's finest.

Truro Church held its first services in a tobacco barn supplied by Mr. Samuel Littlejohn. In 1766, the vestry, which included Col. George Washington, undertook to build a church building for further services. Edward Payne, the man that was to build the church, argued with George Washington on the location of the church. The disagreement turned into a fist fight which Washington lost. Several churches have been built since that time, the newest was built in the late 1950's.

In 1884, the total population of Fairfax City was about five hundred. The children attended Fairfax Elementary School, (the present Adult Services Annex Building). At that time, the school was heated by iron stoves; the bathrooms were outside. In 1924, the new building opened. There were six teachers, children bought their own books, and school lunches cost $.15. Today, ninety years later, Fairfax Elementary is still educating the children of the city.

INTERNATIONAL FRIENDSHIP CLUB

The Barbour House is approximately one hundred and seventy years old. When it was built, the building stood directly across from the courthouse, until in 1966 it was moved down the road. It has been a home, a hospital during the Civil War, and today, a business office.

FAIRFAX CITY

The first inhabitants of this area were the Doeg and Susquehannock Indians who moved on when settlers began arriving in great numbers from the Virginia Tidewater region. The settlers formed the Town of Fairfax at the end of an old Indian trail that was renamed Ox Road, (the street is now Chain Bridge Road). In 1732, the town became a part of Truro Parish, and in the year of 1742, it joined Fairfax County. Fifty-seven years later the County court in Alexandria moved to a new building in the Town of Fairfax. In 1805 the growing town recieved a new name, the Town of Providence. When the Civil War came and went, it left the town destitute, but the townspeople worked hard at its reconstruction. In 1874, with a population of two hundred, the town for the last time was renamed, Fairfax. Fairfax remained small until World War II, when many government employee's moved to the area. Today, Fairfax is an independant city with over 23,000 people. In this, our Bicentennial year, we are indeed fortunate to live in a city as beautiful and historic as ours.

FAIRFAX REBELS ARE

It's only a game.
But to be able to say,
"Hey, guys, I did it!"
To work and ache,
run and sweat,
laugh and cry
together, with a bunch of half-crazy idiots.
To be a part of the best bunch of guys in the world —
and have their respect
as an individual athelete.
When the team wins,
you're caught up in the excitement.
The joy of victory —
Even though you might not have contributed.
But when you do something that makes the team win
that's great.
It's still only a game,
that's true.
But when it was almost defeat
and you helped change it to victory.
It's something more.

Fairfax High School boasted a strong Varsity Wrestling Team for '75-'76 with over half of the members seniors. The Captains of the team were Wayne Scaggs and Clay Summers. Coach Scott offered a steak to the player who pinned his opponent fastest. With this incentive, plus hard work and determination, another successful season was insured.

What a friend we have in time,
gives us children,
makes us wine,
tells us what to take

And the gifts of growing old,
all the stories to be told,

My friends,

I will still be friends with you.

FRESHMEN ENTER SCHOOL FOR ORIENTATION

One of the oldest traditions at Fairfax High School is Freshmen Orientation. As these rising ninth grade students enter the building, comments like, "boy, they're getting smaller every year," flower the halls with repeated crassness. This year, by design of tradition, nothing has changed.

Freshmen received their schedules (upper and middle-right), after which they toured the school (lower). Later, they were entertained in an assembly sponsored by Student Government (lower-right). Perhaps the school and the format for its introduction were new. But the same old remarks, like ghosts from the old Fairfax High School, haunted the little people. "Looks like the rats are taking over . . ."

Peppy and Johnny: A Show of Rebel Spirit

T. GAUTHIER

Traditions ran high during the week of October 29. On Monday an assembly was held to introduce the candidates for Peppy and Johnny to the school. The game and other Peppy and Johnny activities were postponed from Friday to Saturday October 4, because of torrential rain.

Saturday night the Rebs met their arch rival, the Annandale Atoms. Fairfax was leading 14-7 at the beginning of the fourth quarter, but in the end, Annandale won the game with a touch down and a two point conversion.

During halftime, the winners were announced: upon Lori Smith and Brian Drummond were bestowed the honor of being Peppy and Johnny; the most spirited seniors. Mr. Mason and Mrs. Staats were selected to reign as Lord and Lady Fairfax.

The dance after the game had a huge turn-out. The Capitol Band (former Liberty) provided music that was funky enough to jive to. All in all, this week proved to boost the spirit of the entire school.

The dream of victory.

J. BARR

The reality of defeat.

On September 20th, the Fairfax High School It's Academic team, coached by Mrs. Dawson (Senior Counselor), fought feverishly against Wheaton and Washington - Lee High Schools. Aired on WRC-TV, Joe Christenson (Captain), along with Brian Drummond and Hank Bovis, used their every resource in an effort to come out on top. And so, losing in the first two rounds, they maneuvered themselves into first place during the third round. Answering ten questions in a row, they picked up bonus points and were on their way to winning. However, in the final round, the schools jockeyed positions for the last time - Wheaton winning, Washington-Lee taking second, and Fairfax losing.

It is easy to stick together when winning. However the true test of a TEAM is in losing. Fairfax lost, but even in their bewilderment, they accepted third place gracefully and remained a TEAM.

F.A.M.U.N. Assembles at F.H.S. for Annual Convention

Three autumn days, 250 students, endless world problems, and Fairfax High School — the ingredients which formed the 1975 Model U.N.. The International Relations Clubs of area Fairfax County schools assembled for their annual convention, discussing issues such as territorial sea limits, international terrorism, and numerous other world concerns. For the third consecutive year, the new Fairfax High School hosted the young diplomats as they were caught in the flux of foreign affairs.

Students involved in F.A.M.U.N. (Fairfax Area Model U.N.) chose a country to represent. Using procedures established by their counterparts, actual world leaders, their research concerning that country aided them in discussions, arguments, and voting. Organized in much the same manner as the true United Nations, F.A.M.U.N. educated students on international conduct, speech-skills, and law.

Mrs. Nickodem, sponsor of the International Relations Club (IRC), and Mike Boyd, the president, enjoyed this year's program, feeling that the Model U.N. is a fantastic experience for students interested in foreign affairs. IRC's twenty members regarded F.A.M.U.N. as a worthwhile and enriching event. All of them look forward to the next opportunity to represent an unfamiliar race and culture in the 1976 Fairfax Area Model United Nations.

Although the delegates to F.A.M.U.N. may be younger and less experienced in world affairs, as compared to the delegates of the United Nations, their goal is the same — to seek unity in peace.

The magnificent cooperation of the Fairfax High School student body turned the bloodmobile project into a fantastic success. In conjunction with student Government and the Keyettes, the Red Cross set their equipment up in the multipurpose rooms. Eligible students went through preliminary testing and did all the work on their backs. Blissfully bleeding, the donors filled pint bags. It was a vampire's heaven.

Adept in their profession, the trained personnel handled the program with relatively few problems. A few people felt faint but the majority were just a little weak. As a whole, the donors were glad they had helped out in this worthwhile cause. The Bloodmobile left the school as a big success. For those who "gave" — THANK YOU!

Pigskin Pow-Wow is designed to give recognition to those juniors who were involved with Varsity Football. Sponsored by the Junior Class, this tradition was climaxed when votes were cast for the court of eight and Frank Mello was named Chief Sitting Bull (lower-left). His announcement of winning was followed by a dance in which everyone (especially Frank) enjoyed the music supplied by the band, Mantis (lower-right).

The night quickly ended and the people forgot the day's events. All but one — Frank Mello. He'll remember the day when the school honored him as outstanding Junior on the Varsity Football Squad, Chief Sitting Bull.

F.H.S. INTERNS

For the eighteen students involved in the Fairfax Intern Project, an extra dimension was added to their education this year. These students gained on the job experience by serving in positions in various offices of the City and County of Fairfax. Using a rotation system, each student worked nine weeks in one of six different offices. The cooperation of school and government officials made the intern program a very rewarding experience for the students.

A. Carter, F. Gillham and V. Estes worked in the Municipal Court Clerk's Office under Rose Taylor and Judge Elson (A). In the Office of Public Information, P. Kane, T. Winshurst and T. Rogers worked under City Public Information Director, Robert Becker (B). J. Prosser, K. Mickens and J. Mello all worked under Frances Cox, City Treasurer (C). In the City Comptroller's Office, A. Deornellas, M. Miller and D. Meyer worked under Ron Panaggio (D). In the Office of Superintendent of Schools, D. Reed, N. Armstrong and C. Crawford worked under Dr. George Tankard (E). D. Crothers, T. Champion and T. Noltemeier worked for the country Court Clerk, Robert Hufnagle (F). The initiators of the probram are Ed Forsythe and Bob Norris (G).

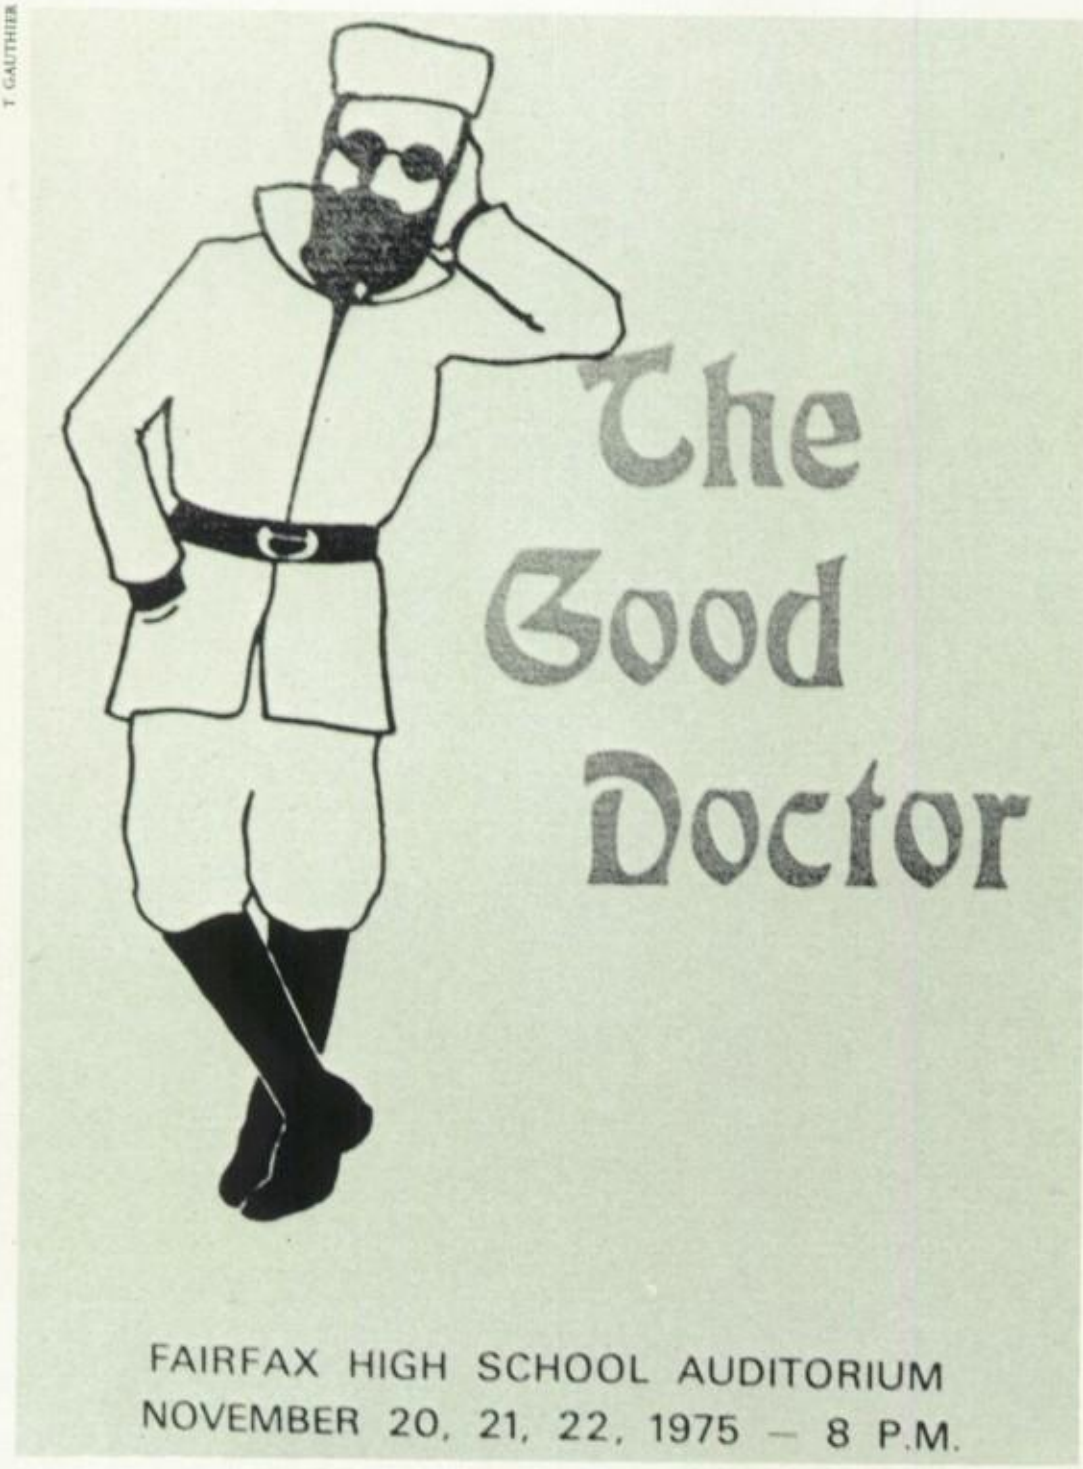
A Broadway Failure . . .

T. GAUTHIER



By combining the talents of Neil Simon and James K. Slautich, what fell prey to the masses reaped mass praise with few.

Considered a relative failure in Broadway, The Good Doctor was clever for its time but lacked the luster of a classic work. Uniting Neil Simon's script and the prodigious amount of energy and talents of Fairfax High School's drama coach, the eleven scenes were transformed into a huge success. The man . . . James K. Slautich.

With his unceasing work, he pulled together managers, directors, chairmen, crew members, actors, and actresses. And on those three autumn nights, the time, emotion, patience, and devotion of all those involved in the play was condensed in a two-hour production.

Opening night of The Good Doctor was proceeded by a full moon (and lunar eclipse). This omen proved to be fortuitous, for the debut received wild acceptance. The play's response grew and was epitomized in the last moments of closing night. The laughter and applause were overpowering. The excited cast was pleased that their efforts had touched great success.

After the thrills, satisfaction and relief came over all those who assembled on stage in the silent and empty auditorium — so recently filled with felicitous commotion. Speaking with words of emotion, Mr. Slautich expressed his thanks to everyone: the cast and the unnoticed ones who helped make the play succeed. The tension surrounding the play was finally alleviated. Everyone shared in a feeling of achievement.

They looked forward to the future and the next play. But the night was young and being only human, they looked forward to a nearer future — the cast party. This was a tradition which was well deserved and could not be missed.

Once the party ended, everyone returned to their homes. They climbed into their beds as sleep overcame them but their minds were still active, filled with dreams of the play, of the party, and of course . . . inheriting five-million rubles. Happy endings are great!

Somewhere in the past there was a vision — a daydream built upon faith in the youth of coming generations and in the future of education — a daydream having as its ultimate goal a great institution building sterling characters, developing leadership, and making for a scholarship that might be put to work in the world.

For that vision — no longer a flimsy dream, but finding its embodiment in Fairfax High School — we are all indeed grateful.

Forward, 1936 Fairfax Sampler
Gorden T. Smith

A decade ago the spirit, faith, and cause foreseen by those dreamers finally materialized in the consolodation of the high schools of Oakton and Clifton to form Fairfax High School. In September 1935, the dream was partially realized when 468 students and 14 teachers began the fullfillment of that accomplished vision — the building of character, the kind upon which this nation is dependent for national growth and improvement.

It seems hard for any person who has ever entered this school to believe that at one time it was merely a vision; for since it first became a reality, it has grown both in character and in stature. It would also be puzzling to anyone to ascertain which phase of this school has expanded to the greatest degree since the doors of Fairfax High School first opened. The annex was built in 1937 to take care of the shop, home economics, and agriculture. In many ways during the past the school has improved and additions have been made: a graded athletic field, six new classrooms, and a supply room. However, as one looks back and remembers, it seems that the most important event was the dedication of the new auditorium and gymnasium on February 4, 1940. Yet everybody was just as proud when the new shop was completed and the dressing rooms for the boys and girls were added to the gym. And still the plant cannot properly accomodate the constantly growing student body which in ten years has reached 927 and a faculty that has increased until it now numbers 42.

Each individual would choose a different aspect of the school's expansion and development for being the most important according to his main interest. It might be considered the curriculum which has broadened and enriched through the year or the instructive extra-curriculum activities that have been added to the program of the school. Or perhaps the organization of a democratic form of student government has proved most beneficial. It might be a greater opportunity for physical development and athletic interests. It certainly could be the improved and ever progressing vocational opportunities offered here.

No matter what the main interests of those who have entered Fairfax High School they have strongly improved. Here, with ideals of character, leadership, and scholarship always held before them, they will strive to make a better world for tomorrow, knowing that they have found here those things which give life direction — ideals, knowledge and that they have left this school richer, wiser for having entered. No vision could be more magnificent than an institution of learning that moulds the very foundation for the infinite and inalienable betterment of man.

Introduction
1945 Fairfax Sampler

This was the vision once held by the class of 1945. It is 1976. Do we still hold these dreams and golden visions, or have they been lost in the passage of time?

When Fairfax High opened in 1935, the students were proud of their school. Within the school was a certain spirit that never seemed to die.

But what had happened to that spirit and pride when the new Fairfax High opened in 1971? Had apathy overtaken that "Rebel Spirit"? Or are we seeing its return? Should our last few traditions be re-evaluated? Or have times really changed that much? Can the Rebel Spirit be built upon the same things?

The students of today will determine the outcome of these questions. As we move forward, will the Bicentennial year be a time of real change or will we witness the rebirth of traditional ideas?

"No vision could be more magnificent than an institution of learning that moulds the very foundation for the infinite and inalienable betterment of man."

WINTER

An Old Fashioned Holiday

The chilled wind of December 20th hosted couples into the warmth of Fairfax High School for an annual tradition. Though seemingly out of season, the Snoball Court Dance continued in spite of the snowless ground. Sponsored for the first time by the Sophomore class, the band — Fringe Parking — fired-up the cold bodies with the zeal of fantastic music and dancing.

The night outside was freezing but inside there was a special warmth, for this dance was in honor of the Snoball Queen — Susan Pike.

T. GAUTHIER

The cold December weather brought hopes of snow and no school, but unfortunatly none came. Instead, the month was highlighted by Christmas activities that were held at FHS. The foreign language clubs held parties which were thoughly enjoyed.

An unusual and special event was an Organ Concert that drew large crowds.

Even though all these activities were enjoyed, students rejoyced when Christmas arrived.

Russian Trip Highlights Holiday

J. CHRISTENSON

While many Fairfax High School students spent their vacations in Fairfax, approximately 20 seniors spent a cold holiday in Russia. They found there were many differences between our country and Russia. Some of the students even sold old jeans at a surprising cost of about seventy dollars. Even though they enjoyed themselves, they were glad to be home.

Working as a whole, the members of Chorale and Madrigals enchanted the ears of those who saw them perform in the Fairfax High School auditorium. Likewise, the Kiddie Koncert, presented by the F.H.S. Profile of a Play

Often a play's success is only attributed to the actors and the actresses whom the audience sees. However, the invisible part of the production, the technical aspect, as too often neglected. Managers, directors, and chairmen, all share the burden of about a hundred very important jobs — yet remain inconspicuous and obscure. These hardworking technicians deserve a great amount of credit, for without them, no matter what acting ability may be a part of a play, it wouldn't go far in a dark and empty auditorium.

Give credit where credit is due. Give the cast merit for their theatrical performance. But on the same token, give equal credit to those people whose technical performance creates the polished product which is finally seen upon the stage.

Whats a Package Deal?

A package deal is the only way this yearbook got in your hands . . .

Profits made by the Yearbook Staff annually compensated for financial losses of the Newspaper and Literary Magazine. Because only Yearbook could tread water, it was felt that if the three publications were combined and their profits were proportionately divided, their monetary problems would cease. However, this was far from the case. Their problems had just begun.

Fifteen dollars shocked the average student, as well as parent. It did not matter that the deal was actually a bargain — in the midst of rising material, mailing, and labor costs. It did not matter what the quality of the publications were (Newspaper and Yearbook hold over 25 awards). People simply wanted an inexpensive yearbook, not a package deal. The fact is, sales were worse than expected and the package deal had no great success. (Understatement? YES) It is forecasted that because of the pathetic publications proposition, Yearbook will do as it has done in the past: stand alone and wear the weight of its own skin, problems, and success. Fairwell "Package Deal"!

T. GAUTHIER

During the 1975-76 school year, Student Government took on a new complexion. By changing fundemental attitudes and policies regarding students, S.G. removed the blemish of internal discontent, left from the previous year. By establishing itself firmly with the Administration, while taking a low-key in the mainstream of High School events, Student Government accomplished more than just creating noise for the sake of just "creating" news.

Headed by President Mark Hyre and Vice-President Kevin Dunn, the 13 individual parts of S.G. contributed to programs like the traditional Welfare Drive and National Week, along with Dances and Bloodmobiles. However, S.G. was by no means only limited to these few activities. Even though it was not always in the spot-light, S.G.'s members were forever behind the scenes of intra- and inter- school affairs. Their incessent work and never-ending energy was forever being channelled into the school. The time spent by the S.G. officers and cabinet on assembly programs and investigations, along with meeting after meeting and countless other funtions, could have easily filled the busy room, I-3, in which they congregated.

Student Government is always faced with the problem of getting people involved in the school. Although S.G. strives to unite the many different individuals and different groups of the Student Body, many people regard S.G. as a clique in itself. In a way this is true because just like any societal group, Student Government is composed of a certain type of person. It is composed of those persons who are most interested in the school. They are people who like working with other people. They are people who like to have fun, like to plan all kinds of things, and like to carry those plans out. Student Government is made-up of people like you, students who are concerned about students. With that in mind, then why aren't YOU a member of S.G.?

This picture is the five senior girls chosen to be on the court. They are, from left to right, Janie Everson, Olga Inclan, Julie Butkiewicz, Connie Trexler, and Debbie Morrison.

The court picture was taken at the residence of James A. Charnley. Unfortunately, little is known about the history of the house, as the records (located in the Court house) were burned up in a fire. It originally had two stories and four rooms. But restoration by the Charnleys have turned the old house into a magnificent home.

Happiness is . . .
graduation in "76".

Happiness is being a Senior in the class of "76". Happiness is living in America. Happiness is the feeling that you belong. Happiness is getting out of school and getting a good job. Happiness is going off to college to find your career. Happiness is having a few drinks. Happiness is sailing. Happiness is going through a day in your life and living it to its fullest. Happiness is a smile. Happiness is learning — and being able to enjoy it. Happiness is the calm after it rains. Happiness is finding out you know more than you thought you did. Happiness is the feeling you are free. Happiness is seeing what everyone else has seen, yet feeling what no other could feel. Happiness is your first love. Happiness is having a purpose in life you can carry out. Happiness is getting along with everyone. Happiness is fantastic keg-parties. Happiness is feeling at home with your friends, remembering favorite moments, and knowing life has been good enough to give you both these things. Happiness is the tranquility of being alone with your love. Happiness is what you are, what you want to be; it's finding the rainbow of your dreams. Happiness is owning a van. Happiness is getting your puppy paper-trained. Happiness is picking-up chicks on Friday night. Happiness is getting rowdy at ball games. Happiness is being with your friends, playing football, going places, partying, and most of all — being thankful for the very fact you are alive and living . . .

Happiness is being at peace with people. Happiness is living in Virginia. Happiness is sitting in the midst of mountains or at the base of a rushing waterfall. Happiness is knowing what the future will bring. Happiness is knowing someone cares. Happiness is a big, frosty mug of beer. Happiness is no school, a good bong, and a pound of Columbian. Happiness is partying for the rest of your life. Happiness is a three-day week end. Happiness is falling in love with the right guy. Happiness is falling in love with the right girl. Happiness is the joy of people, the very essence of life. Happiness is the expression of your feelings towards another person. Happiness is getting out of Physics with a passing grade. Happiness is sharing yourself with others. Happiness is knowing how to spell. Happiness is being accepted as an individual. Happiness is an all-day assembly. Happiness is being outside and under the sun. Happiness is a need fulfilled. Happiness is clean underwear for every day of the week. Happiness is a six-pack. Happiness is caring about someone else, more than yourself. Happiness is being on an ego-trip. Happiness is being on any trip. Happiness is the hug of a good friend. Happiness is winning. Happiness is accepting defeat. Happiness is the thought of spending the rest of your life with one special person. Happiness is a bowl of comquats. Happiness is your first cigarette or drink. Happiness is normality. Happiness is altered consciousness.

Happiness is the times and the friends someday you'll miss, or the soft sweet taste of the first time you kissed. Happiness is your favorite song, or your best friend. Happiness is a snow-day. Happiness is solitude. Happiness is being satisfied, not worrying, searching for the truth. Happiness is having no exams! Happiness is a warm gun. Happiness is being drunk all weekend long, without the slightest hangover. Happiness is a teacher who cares. Happiness is a teacher who reaches. Happiness is your favorite administrator. Happiness is being somewhat crazy. Happiness is toking on a legal cigarette in the smoking lounge. Happiness is completing your first term-paper. Happiness is sleeping. Happiness is the clique you belong to. Happiness is a mommy cat and her ten kittens. Happiness is a Beethoven quartet. Happiness is never having to sit in Bozo's class again. Happiness is being the best at what you do. Happiness is going to the restroom when you need a rest. Happiness is being loved by your honey-bunchy. Happiness is when you hit that "good-ole" slump. Happiness is a pep-rally. Happiness is Senior Skip-day. Happiness is going to the Prom. Happiness is growing-up and facing the world. Happiness is memories. Happiness is the Senior Prank. Happiness is going to Baccalaureate. Happiness is going to the monumental Senior Party. But HAPPINESS is truly the day when twelve years of schooling are held within the palm of your hand and you are remembered as the graduating class, and spirit, of "1976".

NATIONAL WEEK

Bicentennial. Bicentennial. Bicentennial. The national hysteria was in celebration of the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution. Because the country was deluged by enumerous bicentennial projects, proposals, and programs, the F.H.S. Student Government did not want to exhaust the Student Body with what had already been overdone or over-promoted. Faced with the dilemma of an inescapable tradition, how could S.G. make the 1976 annual National Week in the Nation's interest and yet — interest students too. Student Government's answer only came through weeks of preparation, hours of planning, and last but not least — a glistening touch of originality.

The door to National Week was opened on Monday with two assemblies to initiate the week's oncoming events. Congressman Fisher and a representative from the Bicentennial Commission spoke to interested students about their role in the United States today. On Tuesday, representatives from the main political candidates running in the 1976 Presidential Primaries spoke about issues concerning every American citizen. Students had the opportunity to see a more defined image of those who sought the office of the President. (We all know who won — Right?) Wednesday the Fairfax area was plagued with an unexpected visit of snow. Because of bad weather, the assemblies that were scheduled had to be postponed. But this small inconvenience was more than made-up when a capacity crowd came to see a presentation by two representatives of the organization known as NORML (National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws). This assembly may have attracted a lot of interest, however it was not in any way the week's climax. On Friday, members of S.G. planned a supreme surprise. The band, Buster Brown, was to play in concert style, once the auditorium was filled (under false pretense). This program opened with old football films and after about a minute, ended quite abruptly. In the darkness, the stage was opened and a barrage of decibles shook the walls and the minds that viewed, entranced and captivated. The same band came back to the school that same night for the free dance that Student Government sponsored. The whole week was a great success, only to be culminated with a feeling that filled everyone. It was a good feeling. It was a great feeling. It was a great National Week.

NICE

Advertising should always picture or describe that facet of a product or service that is the most appealing. The colored yarns, the hand-painted canvases, and the needlepoint kits to be seen in the picture above are entirely incidental to the smiling faces also pictured. After all, what needlework shop would be without yarn, canvas, and kits? They all have those. But NO other needlework shop anywhere can boast the talent, the expertise, or the just plain personal interest in you that you'll find at the Tapestry Room and the Quilt Patch. When you put all of these things together with the fact that all of those ladies are smiling because they are nice — you have something unique. Treat yourself. Stop by and get acquainted. Bring your latest project, or buy a new one, and you'll never go anywhere else again. Do you find all of this gushing hard to believe? Take a look at the cover of this book. It was designed at the Tapestry Room, and all of the materials and advice that made it possible came from there, too. We think this ad is a little understated.

The smiles above belong to, from left to right, standing, Gwen Harris, Lu Hildenbrand, Archie Chapman, Mary Nell Harris, and Jean Buxton, and seated, Billye Mays, Chris Scolaro, Leni Friedman, and Marge Warsing. Now they are not smiling strangers, and they can be found at:

We, as Americans, believe in the pursuit of labor, respect, independence, thrift, excellence, and peace. Of these, respect is the root of the American Spirit. Our founding fathers believed in it, and we today, need to rebuild our respect for others and especially for ourselves. For self-respect, along with self-dependence, is a highly regarded, much needed attribute.

By each one of us learning self-respect and self-dependence, we will strengthen our community, for the moral strength of this nation depends on the moral strength of the individual. But being self-dependent does not mean we can be independent from others. As long as we are human beings, we will always depend on each other. We as students depend on others in our community, so must they depend on us. United we will stand strong, but divided we will fall. Believe in others and in yourself, for as we move on into the world, WE will become the leaders. Remain active and interested in all that's around you, for our lives are only what we make them . . .

About Our Cover

The cover of this year's Sampler is just that. In the spirit of the Bicentennial, a needlepoint sampler was designed around the theme of historic Fairfax by Marge Warsing, a professional designer who resides in Vienna. The original work measures approximately 18 x 30 inches, and is worked with 3-ply Paterna Persian yarn on an 18-mesh mono canvas. All yarn colors are shades of red, white, or blue. Much of the front cover design is worked in continental stitch or one of its many variations, while the back is worked in Bargello, including several panels of four-way Bargello. In its finished form, the piece consists of over 160,000 individual stitches.

Research, finalization of design, and the actual painting of the design on the canvas totalled several weeks' work. Though Marge has designed several other major pieces, this, she says, "is my masterpiece!"

Much of the front cover and a portion of the Bargello back was worked by Kathie Mason, an amateur needlework artist. She was, she said, "very reluctant" to undertake a work of such magnitude and complexity, but attempt it she did, devoting more than 150 hours of exacting labor to the task before being forced by a rapidly approaching deadline to surrender the canvas to less harried hands.

The remainder of the front cover and the spine were worked by Art Seippel, a very prominent Clifton artist. Among Art's triumphs in competition is the coveted Best in Show Ribbon in the 1975 Woodlawn Plantation Needlework Show. His uncanny speed and perfection of style did much to hold the then critical deadline at bay. Incredibly, Art is seriously disabled by wounds received in Viet Nam, and does all of his needlework while flat on his back.

The final step toward completion of the project, the working of the Bargello back, was accomplished by Mike McCreery, another Vienna resident. Mike is extremely proficient in all phases of needlepoint, but has special facility with the often complex and difficult ornamental stitches. The four-way Bargello, plaid, and like panels on the back bear testimony to her special skills.

Through all stages of production, advice, technical assistance, and materials were lavished upon the artists by Lu Hildenbrand, owner of the Tapestry Room. To her and her staff must go much of the credit for solving the numberless small crises that accompany any such grandiose project.
